Vermont Jump$tart Provides Training for Educators in Nationally Acclaimed Financial Education Curriculum

The Family Economics and Financial Education program (FEFE) provides more than 25,000 educators nationwide with free, ready-to-teach classroom materials, teacher training, online resources and other tools to incorporate lessons related to money management into their 7th-12th grade classrooms. Vermont Jump$tart is pleased to bring FEFE training to Vermont in a half-day mini-conference that will provide participants with curriculum and training in hands-on exercises. All lessons are based on the multiple intelligences model and active learning theories. The modular lesson format allows them to be used independently or as part of complete courses.

PLAN ON JOINING US!

This fall mini-conference is being offered in lieu of our annual all-day spring conference, as we switch seasons to enable more people to participate. A mini-conference brochure will be distributed in early September. Cost is $35 and includes a lunch buffet.

Nicole Wanago FEFE Project Director

Nicole Wanago is the Assistant Director for Outreach for the Take Charge America Institute at the University of Arizona. Since the project's inception in 2001, she has led the Family Economics and Financial Education Project (FEFE). The FEFE program is founded on the idea that a university-based financial education outreach program can strengthen and extend the ability of schools and community organizations to improve the personal financial capability of young adults.
